Lead description

This cable features coloured coded Neutrik connectors and dual core conductors to avoid using the shield as a connection to the negative end of the plug. One connector is coded red and this must be inserted into the amplifier or destination of the signal (e.g. into the start of an effects pedal chain). The lead also comes with a warning to run it in through 40 hours of use – like a new car engine - to give best performance. The cable's exterior is a hard wearing but rather inflexible wound cotton design that looks ready to survive a thousand gigs. Sonically it gave excellent results and having recorded with the cable in the studio its clean reproduction made it a
